

The Important Problem

confronting anyone in need of a laxative is not a question of a single action only, but of permanently beneficial effects, which will follow proper efforts to live in a healthful way, with the assistance of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, whenever it is required, as it cleanses the system gently yet promptly, without irritation and will therefore always have the preference of all who wish the best of family laxatives.

The combination has the approval of physicians because it is known to be truly beneficial, and because it has given satisfaction to the millions of well-informed families who have used it for many years past.

To get its beneficial effects, always buy the genuine manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

Needless Trouble.

"Did you wash the fish?" a woman asked her new servant. "Shure, an' phat's the use of washin' anything that's always lived in the water?" asked the girl.

Criticism.

Of all the can'ts which are canted in this canting world—though the cant of hypocrites may be the worst—the cant of criticism is most tormenting.—Laurence Sterne.

Shipwreck a la Mode.

"Is there any danger, captain?" "Not a particle," answered the bluff old salt. "A moving picture outfit will soon be along and rescue us as soon as they have taken a few films."

Years of Suffering

Cataract and Blood Disease—Doctors Failed to Cure.

Miss Mabel P. Dawkins, 1214 Lafayette St., Port Wayne, Ind., writes: "For three years I was troubled with cataract and blood disease. I tried several doctors and a dozen different remedies, but none of them did me any good. A friend told me of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took two bottles of this medicine and was as well and strong as ever. I feel like a different person and recommend Hood's to any one suffering from cataract."

Local Man in Eleventh Company, U. S. I.

The following incident in the experience of the doings of the Eleventh United States Infantry in Porto Rico during the Spanish war is of local interest, because Charles Naylor of Danielson, now employed at the Central Hotel, was a member of the company of that command during the period when the incidents recorded occurred.

"Our first engagement was four miles west of San German. To the north of the valley through which we were marching runs a river, narrow, but very deep and rapid. A bridge of steel bridge in a long bend where it crosses the road. This bridge and the road approaching it was made the main point of attack by the Spaniards. Upon their side of the river was a range of foothills, furnishing perfect protection for their troops, while upon our side were canefields, whose ditches had been flooded in anticipation of our advance. The enemy thinking thereby to confine us to the road and, having the range measured, to have us at their mercy. From the foothills came the first volley while we were still 400 yards from the bridge and while the main command was on the road to a point to which they had measured the distance. It was the volley that did the damage during the entire engagement. It was the only point at which we gave them any known range. Our command was at once deployed to the right and to the left of the road. A battery of artillery was rushed forward and the Spaniards began. To see a command deployed as skirmishers on the parade ground excites the admiration of anyone, but to see a command deployed in a canefield, the men up to their knees in mud and water, is quite another thing, not saving anything of ditches, barbed wire fences and every other impediment known to the Spaniards. We slowly advanced to the bridge under a hot but inaccurate fire from the Spanish forces behind the ridge of hills. Upon reaching the river and finding it too deep to ford we were again brought to the back of the road and we crossed the bridge with the Mauser bullets whistling over our heads. This move baffled the Spaniards. To see that we had the nerve to re-form and march across the bridge in the face of their fire was too much for them, and they fell back from their first position to the second range of hills, thereby giving our artillery and cavalry a chance to get their work in, which they lost no time in doing. From this time on it was a walkover for Uncle Sam's forces. At about 5 p. m. all fighting had ceased and not a Spaniard was to be seen. Our loss was two killed and fifteen wounded. The Spaniards lost 24 killed and 69 wounded. Next day we marched into the city of Mayaguez, some six miles to the north, with colors flying and band playing. Two days later the Spanish forces, consisting of officers and 200 enlisted men, were made prisoners of war."

Deep Breathing and Digestion. Deep breathing is an incalculable aid to digestion. It should be indulged in especially after a meal.
